I'm Raphaella, hailing from a quaint Portuguese town Salema, where I embraced the beauty of life's simple pleasures. There's something magical about the simplicity found in small places.

My cherished moments revolve around hiking through nature, uncovering the divine gifts bestowed upon us by the Heavenly Father. One particular memory stands out—encountering the Artemisia (wormwood) plant and discovering its remarkable healing properties. This discovery became crucial when malaria struck our town. Recognizing the potential of Artemisia, I swiftly brewed a town-wide batch of tea from it. Miraculously, within hours, the locals found relief and healing.

Gratitude overwhelmed me as I thanked the Heavenly Father for providing this remarkable remedy and safeguarding us always. This experience fueled my passion to further explore and embrace the natural healing remedies gifted to us by the divine.
